In February, Trump made a 75% cut in the budget request to buy respirator masks and other supplies for the national stockpile. 22a. Please read the following statement about what the impact of mass testing for the coronavirus would have been.

“Mass testing for the coronavirus, as was carried out in other countries, would have identified people who had the virus, even if they were not showing any symptoms. That is because those with the infection could have been isolated so they did not spread the infection, leaving others free to go about their business. Unfortunately, there was no mass testing under President Trump, leading to the dramatic spread of the virus and the likelihood of more than 100,000 deaths.”

23a. Please read the following statement about the need for more ventilators to treat people in severe coronavirus cases.

“Ventilators are critical pieces of medical equipment that save lives for people with severe difficulty breathing because of the coronavirus. Governors and hospitals have stated for months that there is an extreme shortage of ventilators. Without enough ventilators, hospitals will be forced to ration care and let some people die while other patients receive ventilation. Experts estimate that the country needs several hundred thousands more ventilators for this crisis, but even now President Trump is downplaying the problem and has no plan to produce nearly enough of the ventilators that are needed to save people’s lives.”
